

Medicaid Disability

Medicaid Disability is a Medicaid aid category designed to serve individuals who are living with a disability. In general, to qualify for Medicaid under this category, individuals must meet three qualification criteria: income limits, resource limits, and the Social Security Administration’s definition of disability. As of June 1, 2014, Indiana will automatically enroll individuals that the Social Security Administration (SSA) determines eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) into the Indiana Medicaid program and will accept all SSA determinations of disability.

Income Limits

Monthly income is used along with resources and disability determination to evaluate eligibility. Monthly income limits vary based on an individual’s circumstances.

Resource Limits

Individuals who qualify for Medicaid Disability may have a limited amount of resources. It is important to note that certain items (for example: the person’s home, one car that is used for medical reasons, and some retirement savings) are exempt from the determination of countable resources. The resource limits are:

Medicaid Disability	MED Works*
$2000 for an unmarried person	$2,000 for an unmarried person
$3000 for a married couple living together	$3,000 for a married couple living together

MED Works members may hold approved accounts with additional assets*

Disability Criteria and Definition

The SSA has a strict definition of disability for children:

- The child must have a physical or mental condition(s) that very seriously limits his or her activities;
- and the condition(s) must have lasted, or be expected to last, at least 1 year or result in death.

The SSA determines whether applicants meet their definition of disabled.

How to Apply

Apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI): Applications to the SSA for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) are treated as applications for Medicaid under 1634 status. Individuals that are found eligible for SSI will automatically receive Medicaid Disability. Note that SSA determinations may take longer than the 90 days required for Medicaid eligibility determinations. More information can be found here: <https://www.ssa.gov/apply>

Apply directly to Indiana Medicaid: All members may also apply to Indiana Medicaid to ensure they receive a timely eligibility determination. Members that are not eligible for SSI must apply to Indiana Medicaid to have their eligibility determined. Application for Medicaid is completed through the Division of Family Resources (DFR). Applications may be completed at the county office, by mail, or online.
